How to use the development guides

The development guides provide a critical commentary to the ideas of writers and thinkers in the management and leadership field. They offer opportunities for you to investigate and apply these ideas within your working environment and job role.

Structure

Each guide is divided into sections that together cover the knowledge and understanding required for the equivalent unit or units of the Chartered Management Institute Level 7 Strates.

Management and Leadership qualifications.

Each section starts with a clear set of objectives linked to the learning outcomes of the qualification. You don't have to complete the sections in the order they appead in the quide (the mind map at the beginning of each guide will he to you decide which sections and topics are of particular med or interest) but you should try to cover all sections if you are aiming for a full diploma qualification.

Activities

Throughout the guides the reactivities for you to complete. These activities are callings to help you reflect on your own situation and apply your research to your organisation. Space and tables are provided within the activities for you to enter your own thoughts or findings, but in some cases you may choose to copy out the table or make notes in a separate notebook.

Timin, s

Timings are suggested for each activity to give you a rough idea of how long you should devote to them. They're not hard and fast, and you must decide whether you will benefit from spending longer on some activities than stated.

Supporting resources

The text of the guides is designed to provide you with an introduction to the subject and a commentary on some of the key issues, models and thinkers in the field. The activities are there to help provide a framework for your thinking. A key component of Pathways Plus (Pathways Plus because the development guides work together with the online supporting resources to provide an overall learning journey) is the list of references given throughout the text and at the end of each topic guiding you to the most appropriate supporting resources for you to explore yourself. These are marked with the symbol SR (as shown above).

You have the opportunity to select those resources that are of most interest or relevance to you and to use them as a source of guided research on a particular topic. Many of the supporting resources are immediately available by logging into CMI's online

P+

Study Resources (www.managers.org.uk/practical-support/study-support) and clicking on the Pathways Plus icon in the qualifications list, or the CMI online management and leadership portal, ManagementDirect (MDir), where you work for an organisation that subscribes to this service — whichever you have access to. These resources are marked in the reference list at the end of each topic with P+ standing for Pathways Plus. A button on the first page of the site (whether Study Resource or MDir) will take you straight to the list of supporting resources as listed in the Pathways Plus topics. When there, click on the title of your development guide, the section and the topic you're interested in and then click straight to the article, video, podcast, checklist, extract or report that you want to find.

For those resources that are not available through the CM site you will be directed to other sources (some also online) to reac what you need.

Preparing for assessment

Further information on assessment is available in the Student Guide produced as part of the Pathy ays Plu serie. If you have any further questions about assessine t proce these, it's important that you resolve these with your tutor or centre coordinator as soon as possible.

Introduction

Welcome to this development guide on personal development. It focuses specifically on the content of the specification for Unit 7001 Personal development as a strategic manager.

This guide looks closely at the leadership skills that you need to operate effectively at a strategic level. It's split into three sections:

- Section 1 is about identifying what personal skills are required as a strategic manager so that you can support the strategic direction of the organisation. In doing this, yo'll look at how to analyse the strategic direction of the organisation to determine what personal and 'ders' ip competencies are required. You'll also evaluate that strategic skills you require as a leader to a his strategic ambitions of your organisation.
- Section 2 focuses on personal leade ship development and considers how to manage this development to support the achievement of the organisation's strategic ambitions. You'll look at the opportunities to support leadership development, construct leadership divergment plans and consider the implementation oces. You're also consider how to evaluate the effectiveness of the plan.
- Section 3 lo ke at how o promote an environment that supports a cut ure staff welfare in a quality way, including he that and safety. You'll consider the strategic aspects of aff welfare, as well as your responsibilities for managing he in and safety, and its implications for leadership. You'll also be'at how you can promote a health and safety culture, how you can best make improvements in this area and how you can change other people's behaviour.

Assessment

If you're studying for the Level 7 in Strategic Management and Leadership qualifications you will be assessed by your approved centre on your knowledge and understanding of the following learning outcomes:

Unit 7001:

- 1 Be able to identify personal skills to achieve strategic ambitions
- 2 Be able to manage personal leadership development to support achievement of strategic directions
- 3 Be able to evaluate the effectiveness of the leadership development plan
- 4 Be able to advocate a staff welfare environment the supports organisational values

Section 1 Identifying personal skills

Introduction

In this section you'll identify what personal skills a strategic manager needs in order to support the strategic direction of an organisation. You'll first look at how to analyse the strategic direction of an organisation so that you can determine what personal competencies may be required.

You'll also evaluate the strategic skills required of you to achieve the organisation's strategic ambitions.

You'll be following the personal development planning cycle (discussed in the CMI checklist 'Personal development planning') and in this section will be focusing on the following wo sage:

- establish the purpose/direction
- identify development need.

Learning outcomes

This section covers the following learning outcome:

7001.1 Be able to identify personal skills to achieve strategic ambitions

Section mind map

There are two topics in this section as shown below. Check the subjects within each one and then continue with the areas you need to explore.

Topic 1: Analysing the strategic direction of the organisation

Introduction

In order to identify what personal competencies are important to an organisation, you have first to understand its strategic direction. To do this you need to explore how strategy impacts on different levels of the organisation and consider what strategy means in terms of decision making and managing change.

Strategy also impacts on the behaviour of managers and le ac within the organisation, which can sometimes cause problems

You also need to be clear about your organisation in purpose. I good way to explore that is to look at the explicit sto tements your organisation makes about its strategy. The contact the form of its mission and vision statement. These can be used as tools for internal alignment — an approach which these to match personal competencies with the vision are values of the organisation. This alignment with the strategy of the used to answer the questions:

- What does the organisation need?
- Where am I at the nome it?

This topic will by you a druss the stage of establishing purpose and direction within the personal development planning cycle.

1.1 Strate y and the leader

Strategy 'm_acts on three levels of an organisation.

- hnse tet al suggest that these three levels are as follows:
- Corporate level: What business are we in? How should we be structured? How should we finance the business?
- Business level: What market or sector should we target? What products or services should we offer? Who are our customers?
- Operational level: How should the various functions within the organisation work together to ensure the business and corporate strategy is achieved?

So, for example, at the corporate level, senior managers should be undertaking strategic analysis to determine the strategic direction of the organisation, asking themselves questions like 'Should we be expanding our existing service to new markets and customers?'

At the business level senior managers might determine a specific sector to offer these services to, for example, the transportation sector.
