
AI-Powered Leadership: Driving Change in High-Performance Teams

Tuesday 30th September 2025

Speaker biography

Olivia Hamill CMgr MCMI, Events Lead, CMI Northern Ireland Board

Olivia is a passionate and innovative Educator who seeks to inspire her students to change the business narrative. Drawing on previous experience as a Marketing Manager she believes in building and working in collaborative teams. Olivia believes in developing 'soft skills' to enable people to cope with the demands of the workplace and become better Managers.

Prof. Philip Hanna, Dean of Education of Faculty of Engineering and Physical Sciences, Queen's University Belfast

Phil serves as the Dean of Education for the Faculty of Engineering and Physical Sciences at Queen's University Belfast. With a background as a Professor of Computer Science Education, he is particularly passionate about technology and its implications for the future for education in a rapidly evolving world. He is a Principal Fellow of the Higher Education Academy and in 2017 received a National Teaching Fellowship for improving alignment across primary, secondary, and tertiary education.

Maggie Buggie CMgr CCMI, Technology Industry Executive and Co-Founder, In this Together

Maggie is a technology industry executive, advisor, and speaker. She has extensive international experience building fast-growth digital businesses in software segments ranging from martech, customer experience, enterprise AI, business process intelligence, human capital management and business networks, to sustainability.

In addition to her advisory roles, Maggie is a Co-Founder of "In this Together", was COO at Normative.io, SVP and Chief Business Officer at SAP, SVP/Global Head of Innovation Services and Solutions at SAP, Chief Revenue Officer at Capgemini, and Director of Global Cloud Sales at Fujitsu. Maggie is a Non-Executive Director at Spirent (LON:SPT), Board Director at Sitecore and serves on the International and the CMI Women Committees of the UK Chartered Management Institute. Maggie holds both a Master of Letters and a BBS Lang in Business and French from Trinity College, Dublin.